

Youth Pulse Check Survey

How did rangatahi aged 12 to 24 years in Aotearoa New Zealand manage during the COVID-19 lockdown, and what supports do they need coming out of it?

number of respondents aged 12 to 24 years 2,658

Who participated in the survey?

 80% were school students and 18% were tertiary students

 67% identified as female and 23% identified as male

 60% identified as Pākehā, 17% as Māori, and less than 10% each identified as Pacific, Asian, Middle Eastern, Latin American, African, Indian

 13% said they were LGBTQI+

 5% said they had a disability

Disclaimer: This survey was not intended to be an accurate representative sample. The survey was conducted online and data has not been weighted against the Aotearoa New Zealand population, so results will be biased to those over-represented. These results cannot be generalised to the total population aged 12-24 years.

Contact during lockdown

I feel like I am not accepted or respected in my bubble at least some of the time

Education and Work

77% of respondents agreed that they would find returning to their education or training course at least a little helpful moving out of lockdown

59% of 19 to 24 year old respondents agreed that they would find returning to work at least a little helpful moving out of lockdown

49% agreed that access to organised social/cultural events would be at least a little helpful moving out of lockdown