

Harrison Ross Moreland

“I applied to be a Youth MP because I genuinely want to make a real change for New Zealanders. I’m passionate about representing the voices of young people and contributing to meaningful discussions on the issues that affect us all. This opportunity allows me to gain firsthand experience in our political system, and it’s a step towards my long-term goal of one day becoming a member of Parliament. I believe that with determination, fresh ideas, and a strong sense of purpose, young people can help shape a better future for New Zealand.”
