“I applied to be a Youth MP because the voices of youth are often overlooked, and our opinions are disregarded. I want to help bridge the gap between young people's voices and government action. My dream is to work for Manatū Aorere — the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade. I am specifically passionate about providing people in difficult situations with humanitarian aid as effectively as possible, so everyone has a chance at living the best life possible. Although Aotearoa is a small country, I believe we still have an important role on the global stage.”
