“Being a Youth MP is very exciting to the eye of a changemaker. To be able to work with passionate rangatahi across Aotearoa who I typically wouldn't get the chance to work with is a driving factor. Not only having the support, but the inspiration of other young individuals who want to make change in our community makes being a Youth MP so successful and welcoming. I am very interested in having the opportunity to create change and amplify the need for social justice with this platform. I look forward to solving various issues within Aotearoa that interest myself and other Youth MPs. As a member of the Youth Parliament, the prospect of actively contributing to positive change resonates with me deeply. It's the shared passion, diverse perspectives, and collective energy of our group that fuel my enthusiasm for making a tangible impact on the world around us.”
