

Hope Milo

“As a Communication and Social Change major and young creative working in the arts, I’ve seen how government decisions shape access, opportunities, and futures for rangatahi. I’m passionate about media that makes politics accessible and relevant, empowering young people to have a say in the decisions that affect us. Politics should meet our generation where we are, and the Youth Press Gallery is a space to learn, connect, and speak for ourselves rather than be spoken for.”
